Understanding The Power Series of Index Annuities

The Power Series of Index Annuities are fixed index annuities (FIAs) issued by American General Life Insurance Company (AGL). FIAs are insurance contracts, not direct investments in the stock market or any particular index. In exchange for your money (premium), the FIA provides you with the opportunity to earn interest based on specific indices or a fixed rate. When you need income, AGL promises to make regular income payments through annuitization (a process that permanently converts your contract to retirement income for no cost) or through enhanced features (also known as guaranteed living benefit or GLB riders) for an annual fee. GLB riders are not available in all Power Series of Index Annuities.

[2] Index annuities are not a direct investment in the stock market. Interest earned is never less than zero in flat or down markets.

[3] Russell 2000® and S&P 500® are price return indices and do not include dividends.

[4] The AB All Market, Dimensional US Foundations and ML Strategic Balanced indices have an embedded cost. See back cover for details.

Fixed interest account	1-Year Fixed Account that provides the comfort and security of a guaranteed rate. Rate is subject to change on contract anniversaries.

PSB stands for Power Select Builder. This chart is not intended to recommend any specific account(s). Consult your financial professional or agent to determine which account(s) are appropriate for your specific situation and risk tolerance. Index interest accounts may vary by firm and may not be available in all firms or states.

[5] PTP stands for Point-to-Point. It represents the period from one contract anniversary (the date the annuity is purchased) to another.

[6] See definition for Participation (PAR) Rate on next page.

Benefit from the power of index-based performance

Depending on the account you choose, your assets may grow with index interest calculated as follows:

- First, interest is based on index performance over a 1-, 2- or 5-year period. This term is determined starting from the issue date of the annuity contract and ending with the anniversary 1,2 or 5 years later.
- Next, interest is adjusted by one of the following crediting methods. These methods can reduce or increase the amount of interest earned (see examples below).

Understanding the interest crediting methods

	What they are	Hypothetical examples of how they work
Index rate cap	Maximum percentage of index performance that can be credited as interest for an index term	10% Index change > 5% Cap = 5% Interest earned
Participation (PAR) rate	Percentage of index performance used to calculate interest	10% Index change x 40% PAR Rate = 4% Interest earned
Performance-triggered rate	Preset rate guaranteed to be credited to your account when index performance is flat or positive. This rate is credited even if index return is higher. No interest is credited if index return is negative.	At Least 0% Index change → 5% Performance-triggered rate = 5% Interest earned
Progressive Trigger	A five-year strategy that compares the index value at each annual observation with its starting value. If the Trigger Condition is not met, the eligible declared index interest percentage is retained in Memory. If the Trigger Condition is met, the current and retained percentages are used to determine the interest credit, and a new Trigger Term begins with a newly declared percentage. If the Trigger Condition is not met during the five-year term, no interest is credited, Memory expires and a new term begins.	Assumes 10% declared index interest percentage each year → Years 1-2: Below index starting value 0% credited / 20% memory Year 3: At or above index starting value 10% current + 20% memory = 30% Interest earned

Please see the Power Series rate flyer for current rates.

The rates above are for illustrative purposes only and do not represent the rates in your contract. Rates are set on each contract anniversary and guaranteed not to change until the end of the index term.

Index interest accounts may vary by firm and may not be available in all firms or states. Please see your financial professional or agent and the Owner Acknowledgment and Disclosure Statement for more information on the availability of these accounts. Index interest accounts are not a permanent part of the contract and may be removed due to circumstances beyond the control of the issuing insurance company. These circumstances and the special rules that govern how assets in a discontinued index interest account may be reallocated are outlined in the contract and the Owner Acknowledgment and Disclosure Statement. Please read them for more information as these rules may vary by contract and state.

Why diversify within an index annuity?

Different index strategies and crediting approaches may perform differently depending on market conditions. Combining multiple strategies can help create a more balanced allocation designed to support more consistent accumulation results over time.

Index annuities provide protection against market downturns by limiting the impact of negative index performance. Because of this protection, diversification within an index annuity can focus on improving growth opportunities across changing markets.

A diversified allocation approach may allow you to:

Access U.S., international and multi-asset index exposure

Diversify across different market segments and strategies

Allocate among multiple crediting approaches

Incorporate the fixed interest account option for additional stability

Adjust allocations over time with your financial professional

Over time, your goals and market conditions may change. It is important to work with your financial professional to determine the best approach to help simplify your allocation decisions and support your long-term accumulation goals.

Diversification does not ensure a profit or protect against market loss.

Progressive Trigger: A more positive approach to zero-crediting years

With an annual Trigger strategy, when the trigger condition is not met due to a flat or negative index return, 0% interest is credited. The Progressive Trigger strategy takes a longer view, giving today's missed opportunity the potential to contribute to tomorrow's growth.

How the Progressive Trigger works

This new 5-year strategy includes a built-in Memory feature that can retain eligible declared index interest–the interest percentage set annually – in years when the trigger is not reached. Then, if the trigger is reached in a later year, those retained percentages are combined, allowing multiple years to contribute to an interest credit when markets recover.

Five-year term

Provides up to five annual opportunities to meet the trigger condition.

Annual review

Compares the index value at each contract anniversary with its value at the start of the term. A flat or positive return meets the trigger condition.

Built-in Memory feature

Retains eligible declared percentages in the Memory feature when the trigger condition is not met.

At an annual review on each contract anniversary, the index value is compared with its value at the start of that term to determine if eligible interest will be credited:

If the index return is negative

- NO interest is credited and the eligible declared index interest percentage is retained in the Memory feature
- The strategy continues to the next annual index value review
- If the trigger condition is not met by the fifth annual contract anniversary, no interest is credited, the Memory feature expires and a new 5-year term begins

If the index return is 0% or greater

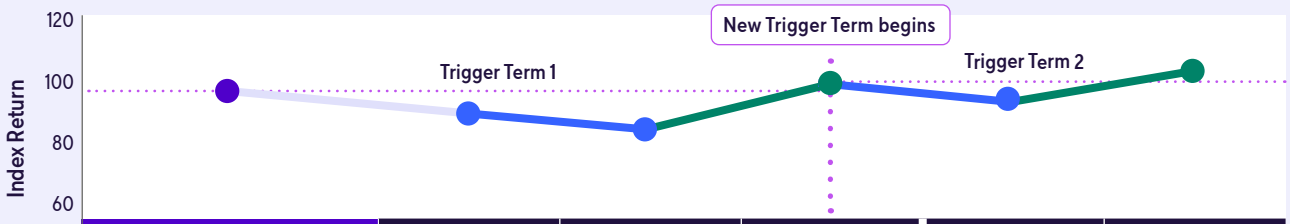

- The current year's declared index interest percentage is combined with any eligible percentages retained in the Memory feature
- The combined interest percentage is then added to the Contract Value
- Activating the trigger ends the current crediting term and a new five-year term begins

Progressive Trigger can help turn missed years into future opportunity

This hypothetical example assumes a $100,000 purchase payment, no withdrawals and a 10% declared index interest percentage at each annual review.

When the index value is reviewed on each contract anniversary, an index return of 0% or greater from the start of the current Trigger Term meets the trigger condition.

Memory feature at work

Issue date	Year 1	Year 2	Year 3	Year 1	Year 2
Starting index value = 100	90	85	102	95	104
Annual index return	-10%	-5.6%	20%	-6.9%	9.5%
Index return vs. start	-10%	-15%	2%	-5%	2%
Declared index rate (Progressive Trigger rate)	10%	10%	10%	10%	10%
Interest credited to Memory	10%	10%	30% total interest credit	10%	20% total interest credit

When the trigger is not met

No interest is credited

The applicable declared index interest percentage is retained in the Memory feature for the index term

When the trigger is met later

Interest is credited

Eligible percentages retained in the Memory feature are included in determining the total interest credit

Rates are hypothetical. Please see the current rate sheet for actual rates.

Trigger Term 1

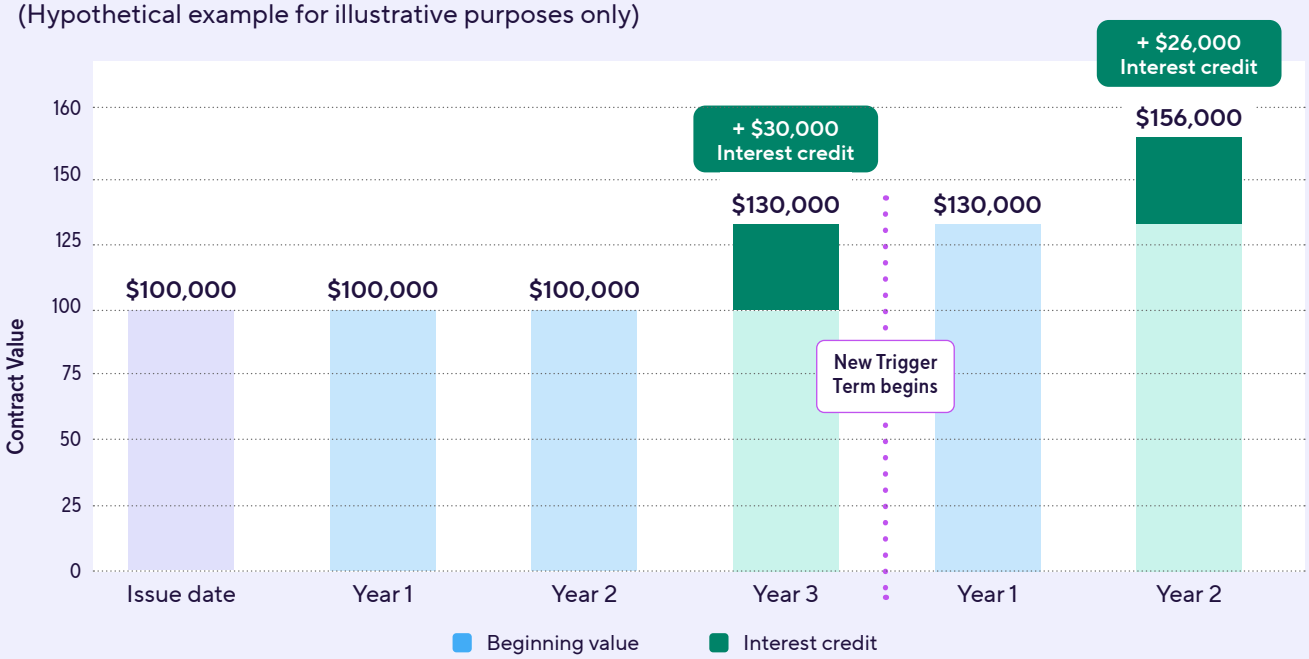

In Years 1 and 2, the Trigger Condition is not met, so no index interest is credited and an eligible 10% is retained in Memory each year. When the Trigger Condition is met in Year 3, the two retained percentages are combined with the current 10% for a 30% interest credit, and a new Trigger Term begins.

Trigger Term 2

When the Trigger Condition is met, the index value of 102 becomes the starting value for a new Trigger Term. The first year's 10% is retained in Memory. When the Trigger Condition is met in Year 2, it is combined with the current 10% for a 20% interest credit, and a third Trigger Term begins.

See how interest credits can build your Contract Value

(Hypothetical example for illustrative purposes only)

Assumptions: For illustrative purposes only. The 10% percentage is hypothetical and is not guaranteed. The Index Term End Date is the earlier of the date the Trigger Condition is satisfied or five years. Once the Trigger Condition is met, a new Index Term begins with a newly Declared Index Interest Percentage. See the current rate sheet for more information. Progressive Trigger is available in select indices only. Please see page 4 for more information.

Contract Value - Term 1	Contract Value - Term 2
Year 3 interest credit	Year 2 interest credit
$100,000 x 30% = $30,000	$130,000 x 20% = $26,000
Contract Value increases to:	Contract Value increases to:
$130,000	$156,000

Although no index interest is credited in Years 1, 2 and Year 1 of the new Trigger Term, eligible declared percentages in each year are retained in the Memory feature. When the trigger condition is met in Year 2 of the new Trigger Term, a total of $26,000 in index interest is credited, increasing the Contract Value from $130,000 to $156,000.

Key terms and definitions

Declared index interest percentage: The percentage used in the Progressive Trigger interest calculation. It is not automatically credited to the contract.

Interest credited: Interest added to contract value when the trigger condition is met, as calculated under the contract terms.

Memory feature: Eligible declared index percentages from prior years that may be used in determining a future interest credit if the trigger condition is met.

Trigger condition: At an annual observation point, the index value must meet or exceed its value at the start of the current trigger term.
